Dear Dean Thompson,

I am requesting an undergraduate bulletin revision for the New Media Track in the Department of Communication.

The bulletin currently states that three Communication classes above 400 are required and lists several recommended classes. Given this wording, a student pursuing the New Media option could take any three Communication classes above 400. We would like to specify the required Communication classes above 400 as well as the recommended classes available for students to take.

The above revisions are included in the new description below.

Revised Description for the Bulletin

New Media: Students wishing to pursue the new media option in the media and technology studies and production concentration should consult the department advisor. In addition to the preliminary core requirements (including COMM 140) above, students must take COMM 150 and COMP 110, as well as two approved COMP or INLS courses from the Department of Computer Science or the School of Information and Library Science. The remaining three classes will be COMM classes above 400 selected from the following list: 431, 490 (when relevant, prior approval required), 636, 638, 646, 650, 654, and 690 (when relevant, prior approval required). Recommended cross-disciplinary classes include COMP 180, 185, 382, and 416; and INLS 151, 161, 201, 318, 560, and 572.

Please let me know if you need anything further in support of this request.

Sincerely,

Patricia Parker
Associate Professor and Chair
Department of Communication
