Proposed Revisions to the Major and Minor in Religious Studies, the Minor in Christianity and Culture, and the Minor in Middle Eastern and Islamic Studies

Dear Colleagues,

I am writing to propose revisions to the undergraduate major and minor in Religious Studies. The reasons for this request is to a) include Hinduism as one of the religious traditions that we teach, due to a recent hire, b) update the affiliation of an Adjunct Assistant Professor, c) note 3 existing courses as having an honors version and one as cross-listed, and d) recognize many (31) courses that are new in the Undergraduate Bulletin. An edited version of the Undergraduate Bulletin section describing the Major and an edited version of the Undergraduate Bulletin section describing our courses are attached – please note that all the changes to the Major also need to be applied to the Minor in Religious Studies.

I am also writing to propose revisions to two minors housed in our department. For the Minor in Christianity and Culture, there are many (7) courses new to the Undergraduate Bulletin. An edited version of the Undergraduate Bulletin section describing the C&C minor is attached. For the Minor in Islamic and Middle Eastern Studies, the reasons for this revision are to a) include many (10) courses that are new in the Undergraduate Bulletin, and b) delete a course. An edited version of the Undergraduate Bulletin section describing the IMES minor is attached.

An important note: The edits are visible in Adobe Acrobat but not in Preview. In Adobe Acrobat, if you hover over one of the blue marks all the inserted material will be visible in a side column, or you can print it out with the comments expanded (“summarize comments” function). Please let me know if you have any questions due to this formatting – I can send hard copies if it would be easier. Thank you for your attention and consideration.

Sincerely yours,

Randall Styers

The Department of Religious Studies is dedicated to the study of religions as historical and cultural phenomena. It examines the history, texts, artifacts, beliefs, values, and rituals of a variety of religious traditions, including Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, and Judaism. Inherently interdisciplinary in its approach, religious studies explores religions in light of related fields in the humanities and social sciences such as anthropology, classics, archaeology, sociology, philosophy, and history.

Introductory and intermediate language courses (RELI 401, RELI 402, RELI 403, RELI 404, RELI 409, RELI 410) are recommended for their usefulness but do not count toward the major in religious studies.

Special Opportunities in Religious Studies Honors in Religious Studies

Students majoring in religious studies (including double majors) with a grade point average of 3.5 or above in department courses and 3.3 grade point average overall and who will have successfully completed at least one course numbered 400 or above on a topic in religious studies that is related to the proposed thesis may choose to write an honors thesis. Candidates for graduation with honors in religious studies are to be enrolled in RELI 691H in the fall and RELI 692H in the spring semester of their senior year. RELI 691H and RELI 692H count toward the major as courses fulfilling subfield requirements. Students should submit applications for the honors program to the department's director of undergraduate studies by the end of February during their junior year. Consult the department's director of undergraduate studies for details.

Study Abroad

Professor Jodi Magness directs archaeological excavations in Israel during the summer. Students are welcome to participate. Other courses through the Study Abroad Office can count towards the major and minor in religious studies as well.

Undergraduate Awards

The department presents two awards at the end of each academic year: the Bernard Boyd Fellowship and the Bernard Boyd Memorial Prize.
