Please find attached the Curriculum in Global Studies changes to the Undergraduate Bulletin for 2018-2019. The changes proposed update the courses that satisfy major requirements for the BA in Global Studies.

The Curriculum wishes the following existing courses be added to those that receive credit toward the major in global studies:

- GLBL 415, 481, 481H, 487, 487H, 491H (thematic concentration: international politics, nation-states, social movements)
- GLBL 483, 483H (thematic concentration: global health & environment)
- BUSI 617 (thematic concentration: global economics, trade, development)
- GLBL 486, 486H, 492H (thematic concentration: transnational cultures, identities, arts)
- ARAB 337 (area concentration: Middle East)
- RELI 385 (area concentration: Middle East)
- POLI 448, 449 (thematic concentration: international politics, nation-states, social movements)
- POLI 630 (area concentration: Western Europe/EU)
- ENVR 610 (thematic concentration: global health and environment)

We have 2 new courses submitted for approval in CRAS: GLBL 415 Dealing with Difference and GLBL 487H Social Movements. Additionally, we have also updated various existing GLBL courses via CRAS to satisfy specific GE requirements.

Sincerely,

Milada A. Vachudova
Chair, Curriculum in Global Studies

Update 10/26/2017: As indicated on the revised catalog text, also remove ENGL 265 from this core list, per Jonathan Weiler and Zach Ward. ENGL 265 includes versions with varied content and some of the versions are not appropriate for GLBL majors.

Additional Information

Of the seven courses in the thematic and world area concentrations, five must be numbered 200 and above.

The curriculum urges that in addition to fulfilling requirements, students continue the study of a foreign language to a level as close as possible to fluency. All majors should also make every effort to include a study abroad program in their undergraduate education, preferably in their sophomore or junior year.

Students must complete all General Education requirements. No courses fulfilling major requirements may be taken Pass/Fail.
